PUBLISHER'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

With the edition of 1895 begins the issue of an Annual Directory for Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti. The nature of the residents of the twin cities, the frequent removals of families to and from them on account of the educational advantages which each offer, makes such a publication necessary. During the year 1894 at least one-fifth of the families in each city changed their residence and nearly one-tenth of the names in the '95 edition are those of persons who have moved to the cities since January 1st, 1894. The many advantageous features of the former editions of this series as compared with publications issued by other parties is apparent. Among the most notable improvements of this over the book of 1894 are, a complete revised map of Ypsilanti, the present residence of all families removed from the city during the last year; the descriptions and locations of streets in the House Directory, together with names of all intersecting streets; the transposition of Miss and Mrs. which gives all given names the appearance of strict compilation, and many minor changes which are of great benefit to persons seeking information from its pages.

A complete county book will be issued alternate years and an extraordinary effort made to make the information as complete as that of the City and Village portions. A personal canvass will be taken of the whole county if deemed necessary to attain this end. In after publications the same pains taking spirit will be manifested as has been shown in this work and each succeeding edition will be marked in improvement and reliability.

Staebler & Co., Fancy and Staple Groceries

ARE YOU LOOKING

For neat and tasty work, promptly gotten out, well printed in the latest styles and at very reasonable prices? If so you should go to the office of

The Ann Arbor Argus

Where the newest faces of type will be found, as well as the best workmen in the city, and where every effort will be made to please you.

NEAT STATIONERY

Of latest styles and best qualities. It costs little more to have good paper and good work than to have poor paper and unsatisfactory work.

IT COSTS LESS

To buy Stationery printed than to buy it in small lots at the stores, and in these days no man should do business without having Letter or Note Heads, Envelopes, Bill Heads or Statements printed, lest he be set down as being behind the times, doing little business.

SUCCESSFUL MEN

Patronize the printer, and they pick out a good printer to patronize. The best work in the city is done at the office of

The Ann Arbor Argus

The oldest paper in the city, having the largest circulation and constituting the best advertising medium.

NEW PRESSES, NEW TYPE

And a Fine Stock of Paper. Programmes, Menu Cards, Tickets, Dodgers and all Small Work a Specialty. We can turn out Briefs and Records in quick time. If you are publishing a book or pamphlet get our figures for printing it.

In dull times, because, no matter how dull, there are always those who must buy for legitimate needs.

The wide-awake continuous advertiser catches the orders. Do you catch the point?

In good times, because the wide-awake continuous advertiser is enabled to select from the great volume of orders the best, leaving the undesirable to the other fellow. Ergo: Advertise continuously, but judiciously!

A small announcement in the right medium is better than a large one in the wrong medium. In dull times you cannot afford to take chances. The Ann Arbor Daily Courier is the right medium!

Let us have your subscription if you do not advertise.

DESCRIPTION.

the State in such a manner as to make connection with nearly every railroad in Michigan, and gives Ann Arbor as good shipping advantages as any city in the country, which has made the city an excellent location for manufacturing plants as has been proven by the share it has received for a city of its size. Ann Arbor has a favorable location and would have been one of the great manufacturing cities of Michigan had not the people chosen (and the great University has forced them into this choice) to make a quiet and beautiful residence city rather than a manufacturing center with the objections which always surround them. They have used the money which others have given as bonuses to beautify their streets, residences and public buildings; considering these together with its walks, its drives and its groves of maple shade, an equal cannot be found in this broad union.

The University of Michigan, the prime mover in this digression from the general method of cities, is the pride, not only of the city of Ann Arbor, but of the State and Nation. The 3,000 students now enrolled in the University come from nearly every state of the United States, and also has representatives from many foreign countries. The University has five distinct departments, that of Literature, Science and The Arts, of Law, of Medicine, of Pharmacy and of Dentistry. The Department of Medicine is subdivided into the Allopathic and Homœopathic Schools. The subdivision of the Department of Literature, Science and the Arts gives for students ample choice for degrees which lead to different branches of professional life. The Library of the University contains upwards of 150,000 volumes, a considerable portion of which, consisting of manuscripts, rare works and great libraries, has been bequeathed to the University by literary and educational men of the passing generation. The Art Rooms and the Museum contain large collections of the highest order. All of the models of the late Randolph Rogers being in the collection.

The public school system of Ann Arbor is second to none in the country. The High School by its excellent management has become the preparatory school to the University with an attendance of 700 students and a graduating class of nearly 100 annually.

Ypsilanti has for years been known as an educational center, being the location of the Michigan State Normal School. The work of the institution is principally the educating of the young women of the State for the teaching of the common schools.
